

Guided Independent Learning

can help me become a more independent learner.

Dependent learners

Independent learners always rely on the teacher can continue to learn on their own cannot make decisions about their learning can make good decisions about their learning do not know their strengths and weaknesses know their strengths and weaknesses do not connect classroom learning with the real world connect classroom learning with the real world think that only the teacher is responsible for their learning can take responsibility for their own learning do not know the best way/s to learn something know about different strategies for learning and use them do not set goals or plan learning plan their learning and set goals are motivated only by others, or focus only on end results/grades are self-motivated, and focus on making progress in learning do not reflect on how well they are learning or the reasons often reflect on the learning process, their own progress and the reasons